KEYBOARD's ARTIST & FEATURE INDEX Vol. 1 - Vol. 6, Complete

Compiled by Ellayn M. Evans

IF YOU'RE LIKE MANY OF OUR READERS, you keep your old copies of CK and use them as a keyboard reference library. Want to know what equipment Roger Powell used on that solo you just heard on the radio? What year the old Brubeck Quartet broke up? The name of the part in your piano's action that just started clicking? That's what we're here for. But every month the stack of magazines gets a little taller. If you've been collecting CK since Volume One, Number One, remembering what article is in which issue is getting to be a real chore.

To help out with this problem (and also to make your magazine collection a little more useful to you) we've put together this Index. It lists every feature article CK has ever published, from our first issue in September 1975 up through the issue you're holding in your hands. Only two issues were published in 1975 (Sep/Oct and Nov/Dec), and six appeared in 1976. We became a monthly beginning in January 1977. In that time we've covered about 350 keyboard artists and published about 140 feature articles on various technical matters, including a number of previously unpublished pieces of sheet music.

The Index is divided into an Artists section and a Features section. The Artists section includes not only feature stories on artists but the brief interviews that appeared in our now-discontinued Backstage column and the pianists written up by Leonard Feather in his Piano Giants Of Jazz column. The code letters that appear beside artist entries are "B" for Backstage, "F" for Leonard Feather's column, and "CS" for a cover story. Among the artists you will find some who are not keyboardists but composers (code "C"), instrument designers and technicians (code "I"), or record producers (code "P").

With the exception of Nov/Dec 75, all our issues are still available, and can be ordered from our Back Issues Dept. (see the ad on p. 54 for ordering information). If you prefer, we will be happy to Xerox individual articles for you for $1.00 per article plus 50¢ postage for the entire Xerox order. When ordering, please be specific as to the subject, title, and issue you want, and address all orders to Contemporary Keyboard Back Issues, 20605 Lazaneo Dr., Cupertino, CA 95014.
